

HelpMeOut

THE NEW WAY TO HELP PEOPLE

Origins

Most of the teenagers would like to write rather to speak.

The blue lines that exist now are no longer working for most of the people.

We wanted to show young people new ways to receive help.

Various tests show that it's easier for young people to open themselves via texting, that speaking with their own voice.

We go across this problem, and deliver anonymous and secure solution.

The screenshot displays a chat window with a header bar containing a 'Back' button and the text 'Connected with an expert in category: Family'. The chat history shows a sequence of messages: an initial greeting from the expert, followed by three messages from the user expressing feelings of isolation and family issues, and a final response from the expert offering support. The interface uses a clean, modern design with a light gray background and blue accents for user messages.
